

ICAD

10

Alzheimer's Association International Conference on Alzheimer's Disease 2010
July 10-15
Honolulu, Hawaii

Highlights from AAICAD 2010

At the Alzheimer's Association International Conference on Alzheimer's Disease 2010 (AAICAD) in Honolulu, Hawaii, the world's leading researchers gathered to review thousands of poster presentations and oral sessions – and learn from hundreds of preeminent plenary and symposia speakers. Visit alz.org/icad to see photos and video from the week and review some of the exciting announcements revealed for the first time at AAICAD:

A variety of factors may modulate risk of Alzheimer's and cognitive decline, including physical activity, tea and coffee, vitamin D, an antioxidant-rich diet with walnuts and an obesity gene known as FTO.

Older African-Americans and Latinos with cognitive impairment live longer than whites and are less likely to be in nursing homes.

National Institute on Aging and Alzheimer's Association lead the effort to update diagnostic criteria for Alzheimer's disease

More news from AAICAD

Session recordings available for purchase

Learn more about the information shared at AAICAD by purchasing session recordings. A full compilation is $349.

Week in review

Catch up on national headlines from AAICAD, watch press briefings and get expert analysis of daily sessions.

See something new at AAICAD 2011

Save the date for AAICAD 2011 in Paris, France, July 16-21. With Paris as a backdrop, this renowned conference will provide you with ideas, inspiration and collaboration as together we push the boundaries of dementia science.

For more information about AAICAD 2010, please visit the AAICAD Web site.

AAICAD is jointly sponsored by the Postgraduate Institute for Medicine and the Alzheimer's Association. Scientific sessions are not supported by any commercial entity.

© 2010 Alzheimer's Association. All rights reserved.

Alzheimer's Association, 225 N. Michigan Ave, Fl 17, Chicago, IL 60601-7633

www.alz.org | 800.272.3900